

LOST HIS PRISONER.

A Philadelphia Burglar Was Too Much for a Camden Policeman.

Among a crowd of passengers who stepped from a ferry-boat at Market street, Camden, at late hour last night, was a man who was immediately recognized by Officer Cable as Harry Hugson, a well-known burglar. The officer promptly nabbed his man and started with him to the City Hall. They had gone but a short distance when the prisoner threw away some burglar tools and a candle which he had been carrying in his pocket.

Officer Cable was unwilling to allow such valuable bits of evidence to be lost and stooped to pick them up. At the same time Hugson suddenly remembered that he had important business in another section of Jersey and promptly shot out Market street. Officer Cable was dazed for an instant and then drew his revolver and fired six shots after the flying burglar, one of which he believes took effect. But the man escaped.
